EL CLAN (2012) Low Budget

The movie EL CLAN (2012) opera prima by J. Falero, has been released in the United States via STARZ (2017) channel property of LIONSGATE. STARZ has more than 24 million subscribers in the USA, and it is the first time that a TV channel with national coverage in that country, in its original version, has broadcast a movie in Spanish "with a Canarian accent". The Clan was the last movie in life of the Goya-winning actor José Sancho (Pepe Sancho).

Before, EL CLAN was acquired by FOX for Latin market, where it issued between 2013 and 2015 in all its payment platforms for all Latin countries.

Note: that this film was filmed in "3 weeks" of shooting, to a "single camera" and with a real cash budget of "€ 250,000", although its production value in the market has been set at € 500,000 (aspect). EL CLAN has just been acquired by STARZ for worldwide redistribution, and has already been sold in Asia and Europe (2018).

Summarizing:

"Low budget humble films", financed with 100% private capital, filmed in Tenerife (Canary Islands) shot in record time (30 - 40 shots per day) and currently the movies are on the international market with millions of visits, from China to the United States, from India to the United Kingdom passing through the Arab world (all cultures have accepted the humble productions by Falero).

Falero has been the main screenwriter, director, and executive producer of his own cinema, is a specialist in capital search and has taught numerous courses and talks on film direction, screenwriting and private financing.

Also, Falero as a Degree in Dramatic Arts, he knows, trains and directs his own actors, a fact that has been highlighted in the press by names such as James Cosmo (Bafta Award - BraveHeart - Game of Thrones) or Eric Roberts (Nominated for Oscar) among others.
