To whom it may concern:

I had the pleasure of having Trevor Waggoner as a student in my course “Doodle to Screen: Developing Animation” at ASU last year. He came up with some of the funniest, most original material in the class. At every turn I’ve found him to be intelligent, funny, motivated, and talented. Whether operating solo or in collaboration, his work is conceptually inventive and well executed. My class involves coming up with ideas, developing them, creating pitch materials, and pitching to the room. One of the more difficult things for students to get is the importance of clarity in writing and presentation, the need to fully deliver on the promise of an idea with continuity and vision. Trevor does that. He’s a good, clear writer and communicator. He not only generates strong ideas, he has the focus and stamina to follow through and bring them to fruition. His assessment of others’ work is focused, respectful, and insightful. On top of all that, he is a pleasure to have around...exactly the sort of person one wants on a crew. I wholeheartedly recommend him.

Sincerely,
