PART 1

SUBTITLE: FEATURING BRADLEY VIERA

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

Welcome, Bradley. Let's start with some questions from the first film. How did Darkness Expedition begin?

BRADLEY

smiling slightly Well, the idea started when I was hospitalized in a psych ward. I was 14 and struggling with schizophrenia and OCD. My psychiatrist, Dr. Padilla, suggested I turn my visual hallucinations into a book, and that's where Darkness Expedition was born.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

That's fascinating. Can you tell us more about your psychological experiences and how they influenced your writing?

BRADLEY

Sure. I created an evil alter-ego named Brandon when I was influenced by horror movies like Insidious, The Conjuring, Sinister Circle, and Scream. Brandon would tell me to do bad things. I used to stare at myself in the bathroom mirror, talking to myself in a deep, evil voice while pushing my stomach to look rough. It eventually caused hallucinations.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

That's intense. How did you manage these hallucinations and turn them into a creative outlet?

BRADLEY

I was hospitalized multiple times, but I took advantage of my thoughts by writing them down. Initially, it was for a book, but later it turned into a screenplay. Dr. Padilla played a huge role in guiding me through this.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

You mentioned horror movies influenced you. Can you elaborate on that?

BRADLEY

Absolutely. Movies like The Scream series from the '90s had a huge impact. I was particularly influenced by Ghostface, with the full black outfit. It fascinated me and became part of Brandon's persona. Watching these movies to an extreme point fed into my alter-ego's creation.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

Interesting. Let's talk about Jessie Murph. How did she inspire you?

BRADLEY

I found Jessie Murph on TikTok. One of her posts talked about losing someone to addiction, which resonated with me. Her song "What Happened to Ryan" and its music video inspired the real-life/fictional storyline for Ryan and Jessie in the film. Her music often deals with female rage and pain, which I incorporated into the characters' struggles.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

How did you incorporate these themes into the first film?

BRADLEY

In the first two scenes, I depicted Ryan struggling with alcohol addiction, inspired by Jessie's music. Her experiences and emotions deeply influenced the characters' journeys, especially in portraying the psychological and physical pain they endure.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

Thank you for sharing that, Bradley. It's incredible how you've turned your challenges into such a powerful creative force. Let's take a break and continue with more questions after this.

TITLE CARD: DARKNESS EXPEDITION: THE LEGACY DOCUMENTARY - PART 2

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

Welcome back, Bradley. Let's dive deeper into the making of Darkness Expedition. How did you develop the characters and the storyline?

BRADLEY

The characters and storyline evolved from my own experiences and the hallucinations I had. Brandon, my alter-ego, became the antagonist, representing the darkness I faced. Jessie and Ryan were inspired by Jessie Murph's music, embodying themes of addiction and redemption.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

What was the writing process like for you, considering your mental health challenges?

BRADLEY

It was therapeutic and intense. Writing allowed me to externalize my inner demons. I wrote scenes based on my hallucinations and nightmares. It was like confronting my fears on paper. The process was chaotic at times, but it gave me a sense of control.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

How did you balance between reality and fiction in your screenplay?

BRADLEY

I blurred the lines intentionally. My real-life experiences with schizophrenia and OCD were the foundation. The fiction came from amplifying those experiences into a supernatural narrative. For example, Ryan's resurrection in the film mirrors my struggle with Brandon's persistent presence in my mind.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

You've mentioned Dr. Padilla played a significant role. Can you tell us more about that?

BRADLEY

Dr. Padilla was my psychiatrist who helped me understand my hallucinations and guided me towards using them creatively. She encouraged me to write everything down, which was the starting point for Darkness Expedition. Her support was crucial in turning my hallucinations into a structured storyline.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

What were some of the challenges you faced while writing and filming?

BRADLEY

Maintaining mental stability was the biggest challenge. There were days when Brandon's influence was strong, making it hard to focus. Filming was also tough because seeing my visions come to life on set was both surreal and triggering. But the team was incredibly supportive, which made a huge difference.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

How has your work on Darkness Expedition impacted your life and mental health?

BRADLEY

It's been life-changing. Turning my struggles into a creative project helped me gain a new perspective on my mental health. It gave me a purpose and a way to connect with others who might be going through similar experiences. It's also been rewarding to see how the film has resonated with audiences.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

What message do you hope viewers take away from Darkness Expedition?

BRADLEY

I hope viewers understand the importance of confronting their inner demons and the power of redemption. I want them to see that even in the darkest times, there's a way to find light and purpose. Mental health struggles are real, but they don't have to define you.

INTERVIEWER (O.S.)

That's a powerful message, Bradley. Before we wrap up, is there anything else you'd like to share about your journey or the film?

BRADLEY

I'd like to thank everyone who supported me, especially my family, Dr. Padilla, and the cast and crew of Darkness Expedition.

(MORE)

BRADLEY (CONT'D)

This project wouldn't have been possible without their belief in me. I'm excited for what's next and hope to continue using my experiences to create meaningful stories.

(excited)

My favorite character is Jessie because she's so strong and determined. She shows that you can overcome anything if you have the willpower.

FAN 2

(enthusiastically)

I love Jester! He's such a complex villain with a tragic backstory. His character adds so much depth to the film.

(smiling)

For me, Bradley's character is the best.
