Richard Lasser is an award-winning, professional screenwriter of six produced feature films, and a produced D.G.A. playwright.

Richard wrote "Walking With the Enemy" (starring Academy Award Winning Best Actor Ben Kingsley). Prior to that, his feature film script "The Tricks of Love", won Best Picture at the Monaco International Film Festival and 3 major acting awards, including Best Supporting for Natasha Lyonne ("Orange is the New Black").

30+ producers, theater companies and production companies have hired him to write, rewrite or polish their feature-length/full-length scripts.

In terms of playwriting, his full length play, "The Impeachment Trial of George W. Bush" premiered in San Francisco and was later produced for public television in Washington. He next completed the full length drama, "Happy Flowers" for a Chicago producer. And he recently co-wrote the libretto for the Civil Rights-themed, full-length musical "When We Get There".
